State Parks Have Visitor Interest

JACKSON, Miss. — Southerners, Mississippians included, travel far to visit scenic areas in far away tates. Right here in Mississippi, within the past two years have been developed ten state parks, making it possible for family, congenial private groups, as well as organized camp groups to spend leisure time out-of-doors in a healthful and pleasurable way at small cost. Contributing toward this enjoyment is the unsurpassed natural beauty of spacious woodlands, charming as well as comfortable hosing for summed and winter, tempting and wholesome food or a place for one to prepare his own meals. To these facilities trained activity leadership for the summer season is being added in two of the state parks - Clarkco near Quitman, and Percy Quinn near McComb.

Plans for activity leadership and directed recreation within the parks were drawn up at the request of Mr. J. H. Fortenberry, director of State Parks. In the planning for these two areas the State Park Board has been assisted by the State Planning Commission and the State Recreation Program of the Works Progress Administration.

The activity leaders, three in each of the two parks, are being provided through the Recreation Division. The program of activities is being outlined by this division and special training by the instructors on the state staff will soon be under way for these leaders who have been selected from those already employed on the program.

Activities will be open to those staying over night or for a period of time in the parks and for those coming out for the day. Activities under the leadership will fall in the following general types:

Waterfront activities consisting of swimming, boating, life saving, instructions, water games, water pageants.

Beach activities, such as badminton, soft ball, horse shoes, ping-pong.

Out-of-door dramatics including plays, pageants and festivals, impromptu dramatics, and camp fires.

Social recreation such as organized parties, group singing, and folk dancing.

Nature lore and over-night hikes.

Crafts from native materials found within the parks.

Lowry In Race For Highway Com.

T. J. Lowry, of Chickasaw county, former Penitentiary Trustee, this week announces formally to the people of Grenada county that he is a candidate for election to the office of Highway Commissioner for the Northern District.

"I am entering this campaign," Mr. Lowry states in a communication to The Sentinel, "only after having thoroughly studied the duties and responsibilities of the offer and responsibilities of the offender a service to the people of this district and state and submit my past record as a basis for judgment of my qualifications."

Mr. Lowry, born and reared on a farm in Chickasaw county, has owned and operated a farm for the last 25 years. He is a graduate of the high school in Houston, where he now resides, and attended Millsaps College and the University of Mississippi. He has been a Government Licensed Cotton Classer since 1929 and has had 12 years of experience in public and cooperative buying and selling of farm commodities and equipment.

Entering politics for the first time in 1931, Mr. Lowry was elected Penitentiary Trustee from the Northern District by a majority of 32,000 votes. He carried 30 of the 31 counties, receiving a total of 74,000 votes—the largest number of votes ever received by any candidate for any office in the Northern District. In Grenada county he received a majority of 821 votes over his opponent.

Mr. Lowry announced for Highway Commissioner in 1936, while the legislature was in session. Before it adjourned, the legislature made the office appointive for three years.

"During the four years that I served on the Penitentiary Board, the operating expenses at the Mississippi State Penitentiary were reduced by $1,092,000.000, as compared with the operating costs for the four years previous," Mr. Lowry states. "This was done despite the fact that we had approximately a 35 per cent increase in the prison population during those four years. The operations of the penitentiary showed a nice profit to the state for that period.

"This saving in operating costs was made possible by the in-

Respected Farmer Confesses Murder

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Fate played a mean trick on Tom Baldridge, 51 and so the man who concealed his identity for 20 years until he believed he was about to see, must return to the Oklahoma penitentiary to complete a 20-year term for murder.

It was a "deathbed" confession that Baldridge believed he was making when he gasped out to Deputy Sherjfi Mack Howard, of Taronza, Ark., last week that he was really J. R. Howard and was wanted in Oklahoma for murder. He had killed a man in Ottawa county, Okla., in 1915, he related, and then killed a guard in 1918 when he escaped from the Oklahoma prison.

For 20 years Baldridge-Howard has been a respected farmer of the Marked Tree, Ark., community. Last week he was stricken with pneumonia and when death appeared imminent, he called for Howard and made his confession.

But Baldridge did not die. He was brought instead to a Memphis hospital where he is rapidly recovering and Oklahoma officers already are enroute here to return him to that state.

Sulking in his hospital bed, Baldridge today was rueful of his fate. "I'd rather die than go back to prison," he said.

Baldridge's present wife is his third and she appeared little concerned about her husband's fate.

"I always knew he was hiding something," she said, "and he often said he had killed some men."

Memphis detectives who questioned Boldidge last night described him as "dangerous and tough" and ordered him closely guarded until Oklahoma officers arrive to take him in custody.

Coach's Wife Gets Letter

Milwaukee —Mrs. Bill Chandler wife of the Marquette University basketball coach, won't have to shout so hard to be heard at the Hilltopper games next season. The university athletic board has presented her with a megaphone and a co-ed's "M" sweater for her loyal support to the team.

"RainMaker" Brings Relief To Florida

FROSTPROOF, Fla. — Enthusiastic citrus growers today hailed Lillie Stoate, the sit-down "rainmaker" from Mississippi, as the savior of their drought-parched groves.

Miss Stoate, a gray-haired deaf woman of 67, was credited by the citrus men with having broken a long, damaging dry spell by her three-and-a-half day vigil beside the shores of Lake Reedy.

The drought was broken late yesterday by drenching rains in the Frostproof area, and weather reports today said heavy showers throughout the heart of the citrus belt materially eased the arid conditions.

The showers cascaded over the parched citrus lands after federal meteorologists in the section forecast Sunday that no rain was in prospect for at least a week.

Miss Stoate was brought here by a group of Frostproof growers from Oxford, Miss., her home, where she had been noted since 1916 for her ability to "make it rain."

The essence of self-assurance, Miss Stoate looked over a stack of congratulatory telegrams today and explained modestly that she does not consider herself possessed of supernatural powers.

"I just sit beside a body of water and the rain comes," she said. "It is nothing more than that—I can't explain it."

The little old lady from Mississippi felt that her job was done, but said she would stay as long as the citrus crowers, who are paying her hotel and tranportation expenses, want her to remain.

Some growers considered "lending her to drought-stricken communities in South Carolina, particularly in the Everglades section near the lower east coast where fires are eating through dry muck-lands.

Athlete Called "Judge"

Milwaukee —Jack Nagle, popular reserve forward on the Marquette University basketball team didn't play in a single game last season. He drew from his teammates the nickname of "Judge" because of "his long and faithful service on the bench.

Scobey News

The Board of Trustees of the Scobey school met at the school building Friday night and elected the faculty to serve during the 1939-40 session. Mr. Festus Mullen of Cascilla, was elected Principal, Miss Pauline Lowe, also of Cascilla, the Primary in Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Elmore's places, Miss Kate Evans of Pine Valley, was re-elected the Intermeniate teacher. Mr. and Mrs. Elmore have a place in Enid school as superintendent and music teacher. The trustees are: Messrs. R. H. Hackett, J. H. and W. H. Tribble.

Supt. Luke Wallace, of Oakland, spent the week-end with his father, Mr. J. M. Wallace.

Mr. Clifton Tribble, of Grenada, spent the week-end here with his brother, Mr. Travis Tribble and family.

The ladies met with Mrs. Wynne McSwine in the home of Mrs. P. S. Clements Monday afternoon and put in a quilt for her daughter, Miss Annie Claire McSwine. Mrs. McSwine's supervisor, Miss Andry Harrison, of Coffeeville met with the ladies.

Mr. J. M. Wallace's nurse Miss Mattie Womble, spent Sunday with her parents, of Spring Hill.

We had quite a bit of hail here Sunday morning, but no damage was done. The rain was appreciated on the gardens.

Rev. James Lippencott will fill his regular appointments here next Sunday morning and night. Every one is invited to attend.

Hamlet Hunts Mayor

Sturgeon, Mo. —the little hamlet of Sturgeon is looking for someone to take the job of mayor. Not one of the 600 inhabitants has filed for the office, which is to be filled at election April 7. Every prospective candidate who has been requested to run has flatly refused.

Yolles Store Formally Opened

Yolles Department Store opened formally to the public Tuesday, amid showers of rain, generously accompanied by showers of congratulations, in person, by wire and with flowers.

The Manager, Samuel Yolles could not conceal a spirit of elation. Grenada, in its generous way, had extended a welcome, which made him proud of his beautiful new store, adjacent to Grenada Bank on Main Street, and proud that it was located in this fine and hospitable city.

While there were many words of congratulation and appreciation, there was a generous response to the advertised bargains. Many have shown their appreciation in a material way.

The building presents little of its old appearance as a cafe. The most modern type front has been installed and the interior completely redecorated, becoming a store room of unusual attraction.

Lockett Is Low Bidder

The City Council at its recess meeting Monday tentatively awarded the contract for the 8,000sq. feet of floor space to be added to hosiery mill, to Lockett Lumber Company, the lowest bidder.

It will be necessary, however to revise some plans and specifications it is said to bring the cost within the $15,000 bond issue.

In the absence of Mayor Neelly, who is ill, Alderman John Bradley presided.

To Barter U. S. "Loan" Cotton

NEW YORK — P. W. Litchfield's plan to barter U. S. "loan" cotton to England and Holland for a surplus supply of crude rubber "has its merits," according to secretary of agriclture Henry A. Wallace.

The plan of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., preident have to be examined, however, to see if it would "interfere with the trade agreement program," Wallace said.

A vote on the resolution of Sen. George of Georgia, (D.), to block government subsidy on cotton exports has been deferred pending further house developments on the parity payments appropriations and plans of the administration for encouraging cotton exports.

Demand for spot cotton in Southern markets is reported "poor" with only scant buying by domestic mills and export demand negligible.

Activity in Liverpool has been reported dull, with traders keeping to the sidelines pending WaDshington developments.

U. S. Alarmed Over German-Italian Trade

WASHINGTON — Germany and Italy were reported today to be embarking on a "post Madrid" trade offensive in South America.

Diplomatic information that Germany and Italy would use the triumph of the Nationalists in Spain to attempt to strengthen their economic and political influence in the western hemisphere increased concern here.

The announcement of an Argentine - German barter deal whereby Germany traded 64 locomotives and many railway cars for 100,000 tons of wheat and 8,000 tons of wool had a disquieting effect. There were reports that other barter deals were pending.

Meanwhile, the United States counter-offensive in Latin America, marked by recent success in negotiations with Brazil, encountered congressional difficulties.

1. The house appropriations committee knocked out a $250,000 item in the agriculture department appropriations bill, intended for use in strengthening agricultural representation thruout Latin America and to inaugurate scientific research programs to encourage development of inter-American commrce in non-competitive commodities such as rubber, quinine, and hardwoods, now supplied by the Orient.

2. Senate passage of a sugar bill for the primary benefit of Mainland producers was regarded as likely to damage Cuba and prove an obstacle to revisions of the present United States - Cuban agreement.

3. The drive of domestic vegetable oils interests for higher excise taxes worried several trade-agreement countries; an amendment to defer the proposed increases when in conflict with trade agreements, will be considered by the senat financ committee Thursday.

Practical effect of these developments has been to arouse uncertainty in Latin America as to how far the United States will "follow through" on its trade program.

Commercial authorities believed that industrial recovery in this country was affording the best prospect for more satisfactory commercial relations with Latin America. Imports from Argentina were up 38 per cent in the first two months of this year compared with the same period of 1937.

Larger purchases by the United States automatically relieve the exchange problem in Latin America while lessening the necessity which some of the countries have felt for entering barter arrangements with Germany.

Rosebloom News

The rain which fell here during the week-end was gladly welcomed. Gardens are looking fine.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Carpenter and grandson, Tandy, were callers on Mr. and Mrs. George Lane one night last week.

Mrs. Lottie Whitten attended the adult teachers class in Charleston Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Bloodworth visited relatives in Water Valley Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Lance, of Grenada, were in our community Sunday.

Messrs. Guy Wolfe, Emmett and Woodrow Lee, of Paynes were visitors in our community during the week-end.

There is lots of flu here now, though not anyone seriously ill.

Miss Pauline Lane who is attending school at Senatobia spent the week-end with home folks here. She has been elected primary teacher at Scobey school.

Mrs. Woodrow Bloodworth is spending the week with her parents near Charleston.

Several from here attended the many sales in Grenada and found many bargains.

Primitive Folk Live On Mud Island

MEMPHIS — With the rising of the sun each morning, Memphis' skyscrapers cast shadows over an island wilderness where 200 persons live like backwoods folk found in remote sections of the Southland.

Separated from the busy Memphis waterfront by the narrow Wolf river and from Arkansas fish docks by the mighty Mississippi, Mud Island—which twenty years ago did not exist—is the homeland of 50 families who live on farms where they can hear the noises of a big city and the whistles of steamboats plying the streams.

On this thickly - wooded island—little more than a stone's throw from Memphis busiest corner—smoke curls from the chimneys of tiny, ramshackle cabins half hidden in the swaying willows. Dogs bark loudly and viciously at approaching strangers. Roosters crow and hens cackle. Pigs grunt in their backyards while a wind made odorous by the dirty fetid father of waters wails through the trees.

The quick rustle of startled rabbits is heard in the underbrush. Crows caw harshly as they wheel and glide over cornfields and rows of cotton.

Mud Island first appeared in Memphis' harbor about 20 years ago and has grown until it now efforts of U. S. army engineers to block formation of the island which almost ruined Memphis' fine harbor were futile.

Families on Mud Island—it was called that for lack of a better name—live in houses mounted on big logs or empty oil drums. The drums and logs serve as flotaers for the houses when high waters cover the island.

Some live in houseboats—arks of the modern day — which rest on the ground when the stream is low and above the ground when the water reaches flood levels. Every house is anchored fast. To live in an unfloatable house on Mud Island is unthinkable, for almost every winter the water goes so high that even the tops of the tres are covered.

Residents on the island pay no taxes of any sort, and everyone owns his own home. Naturally, there are no modern conveniences, and the greatest problem is that of obtaining drinking water. Almost all the inhabitants trap rain water in barrels while others row across Wolf river to Memphis to get their supply.

Most of the island's dwellers are unemployed or part-time working riverfolk who are satisfied to be near the stream that holds some mysterious charm. They are content to do perhaps one day's work each month and spend the rest of their time tending their small crops, hunting in a veritable jungle where wild life is abundant, or fishing in ever-productive coves around the island.

The island, which belongs to Tennessee, has been considered for various purposes by state officials, among them the idea of constructing a convenient airport. But every plan has been abandoned for some day the whimsical Mississippi may take the island away as rapidly as he built it. Until that time, Mud Islanders probably will live in peace.

Oxford To Honor Its "Rainmaker"

OXFORD, Miss. — A huge mass meeting was arranged today to welcome Miss Lillie Stoate when the 67-year-old rainmaker returns from her Florida triumph.

One difficulty was expected — Miss Stoate may be asked to explain her method. She told Florida citrus growers who imported her to bring rain that she couldn't understand the "power" which she received from a brother 23 years ago.

Miss Stoate said all she had to do was sit beside a body of water and the rain would come. The rain came, citrus growers satisfied and proud citizens of Oxford said she would be welcomed home with a celebration appropriate to her fame. She was expected to return her by Friday.

The Library had a very unwelcome visitor on Sunday night. Some one must think very little of his safety to risk the breaking of two windows in a public building for the small recompense in a library. This visit simply means that the citizens will be cut out of the pleasure of two books which the money stolen would have bought.

The unit for negro readers will be opened on Monday, April 3rd in the basement of the Meethodist Church, bordering on the school grounds. The hours will be from 3 to 5 daily. We want to thank the members of this church for making this space available to the negro population. This is what we call cooperation in a fine way. Forty-eight new books for children have been bought for the already good collection and all have been put in good shape for reading. We hope that the readers will enjoy them but also take good care of them so that others may share in this privilege. Bradye Harvey, NYA worker will have charge of the reading room and we ask your help in making this a useful, quiet, and well conducted project.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Acid in System Often Causes Painful Attack of Gout —Diet and Mineral Baths Give Relief

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D

I REMEMBER telling you long ago about a patient who said he "supposed it was bad enough to have gout and be rich; it was awful to have gout and be poor" Many people confuse the symptoms of gout with those of rheumatism, but they are not the same. If ever we do have a real case of acidity, it is; when we have an attack of genuine gout. We do not hesitate to say that gout is caused by excess uric acid, but we do not admit that rheumatism is a case of acidity.

DR. CHRISMAN

Conditions causing gout can be inherited, as excess weight and an early tendency to hardening of the arteries. The real source, however of gout and its accompanying distress and disability is found in one's living habits. The gout sufferer is usually given to excessive eating and the consumption of much rich food, without due exercise to dispose of it.

While the indulgence in alcoholic liquors is conducive to gout, it is quite possible to get it without being addicted to the use of alcohol. It is a quite common disease in England and most of us are accustomed to illustrations of elderly English gentlemen with a much bandaged foot resting on a footstool.

There are certain symptoms of an attack of gout that are characteristic and unmistakeable. The location is practically always in a great toe; the time is usually the [illegible] or early in the morning; the pain is of the boring type and very severe. The onset is more often than not, quite sudden. It is true, there may be some dyspeptic symptoms, some dragging in the feet and legs, usually a sense of depression.

For several days the disease may be marked by chilliness and fever, but gout is not averse to coming on when one is seemingly quite well. The joints of the great toes, maybe only one of them, but that is enough, will be swollen, and if the case is at all pronounced, the skin will be red and hot. The blood will all seem to have rushed to the one spot, to judge from the distended veins about the joint. For a few hours the pain is intense, and often there is profuse sweating, which is followed by a decline of the temperature

Relief may be afforded during the day but night is likely to see a return of the suffering. It is the sort of pain that sets the nerves on edge, and to approach the patient is to incur his wrath if there is the slightest jar of the floor or chair.

Usually the attack lasts four or five days and as it wears away the skin around the affected joint will peel off, and the trouble disappear for a time. Sometimes gout attacks the fingers, wrists or elbows, but is usually confined to the toes, and is most disabling

There is not much to be done with medicine, unless the salicylates prove helpful—only a strict dietary and hygienic program will bring relief. Pain must be controlled, and local applications will sometimes do this. The patient is usually plied with mineral waters and if it can be arranged, he spends much time in mineral water baths. Radium has been used with considerable success. Green vegetables, fruit juices and cooked fruits are indicated for food.

MOBILE POLICE STATION INTRODUCED IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O. — Safety Director Eliot Ness is taking the law to the offender with the development of a "traveling police station."

Traffic violators are "booked" and sign personal bonds for their appearance in court on the scene of their violations, thus saving an immediate trip to the police station.

Director Ness, formerly an agent to the Federal bureau of investigation, has expressed his determination to "put the entire police department on wheels."

Johnston Opposes FDR's Cotton Plan

SCOTT, Miss. — President Roosevelt's export cotton subsidy program, outlined at his press conference yesterday, has no substantial promise to the producer," Oscar Johnston chairman of the National Cotton Council, said today.

He said that the proposal would "prove unfortunate to the American farmer" if put into effect.

Johnston, who formerly was in charge of the government's cotton pool, asserted that under the president's plan those farmers who take advantage of the loan would get approximately eight cents a pound plus soil conservation and parity payments.

"Experience has taught us," he said, "that more than half of the experienced producers, usually the very small ones, do not take advantage of the loan. They will sell their crops at whatever they can get, thereby keeping the market level under the loan."

Johnston warned that Argentina, Brazil India and the other cotton- producing countries might retaliate by subsidizing exports and if they did "we would accomplish nothing."

Spanish War Believed Over

MADRID — Nationalist "fifth column" men seized the key republican cities of Cuenca, Ciudad Real and Murcia today as Generalissimo Francisco Franco sent columns of food trucks into starving Madrid.

The republican defense council had surrendered unconditionally in the name of all republican Spain, and to all purposes the Civil War was over.

But two Nationalist armies were crushing all resistence in the Toledo and Cordoba zones. Communist and anarchist elements, defying the surrender order, had held out in some cities.

F. D. R. Leaves For Warm Springs

e Mr. Roosevelt completed unfinished, pending business and received routine reports of legislative and international situations before boarling his special train at 2:30 p. m.

HE TELLS JUDGE, "SO LONG, I'LL BE SEEING YOU"

CLEVELAND, O. — After getting drunk on money that Police Judge Joseph N. Ackerman had given him to buy tobacco, 71-year-old James Cleary swaggered into the judge's court and begged for "one more chance."

"I saved the money you sent me at the workhouse," Cleary said "but when I got out I felt I had to celebrate."

Judge Ackerman gave him a suspended sentence. Cleary bustled sappily out of the courtroom waved goodby.

"So long, Joe," he said, "I'll be seeing you."

George Van Buskirk, Jr., rich and bored, and his friend Conrad Phelps, become acquainted with Mary Hale and Trixie Anderson, saleagirls in a department store. George presumably is engaged to Audrey Hampton, whom he does not love. Mary and Trixie know the men only as George Bush and Con Palmer. They express a desire to visit the Van Buskirk yacht in the Hudson River and George, attracted to Mary, plans to find out whether Mary is wholesome or a gold-digger. He proposes that Reggie de Puyster, in debt to him, enact the role of yacht owner and attempt to dazzle Mary with millions. George hopes that Mary will spurn Reggie's supposed riches.

CHAPTER V

IT WAS the following Sunday. George and Con had called for Mary and Trixie in a dilapidated borrowed roadster.

"So you're falling for this too?" he asked, with a touch of disappointment.

Trixie gasped when she saw it.

"Well, it isn't exactly my idea of first-class transportation, but it will do! All I ask is that you follow the subway. In case of a breakdown, a nickel fare will get us all home. Nothing like being practical, you know!"

George grinned. It would have spoiled his plans to have come in something gilded. He and Con were supposed to be hard-working young men with limited resources and the dilapidated car should dampen Mary's interest in him if it would be disappointed.

"How do you like it?" he asked her, as they started on their way.

"I think it's swell!" she said.

The drive to Croton was eventful and when they reached the dock, they found Bill Harrow a member of the yacht crew waiting in the speedboat.

Bill had been well coached these last few days by Con. He could be trusted to execute even the most delicate mission. He had been with George for ten years and knew every whim of his master.

He was at a loss however to understand this latest activity which Conrad Phelps was taking an important part. Well, it wasn't for him to ask questions.

"Where's the captain," Con asked when the girls had been seated in the speedboat and they were ready to shove off for the yacht.

"Ashore," Bill replied. "Went early this morning. Orders from Mr. Van Buskirk to meet him in New York."

George remembered his message to Captain Struthers to call at his apartment and wait for him, if he were out. "I hope he'll make himself at home and spend a comfortable day," he thought to himself.

"That's just great," Con explained. "Then we can take a good look around. The girls want to see everything."

"Okay," Bill said. "The yacht is yours."

"But you'll have to show us around," Con suggested.

TRIXIE supplied the running comment as the inspection progressed. "The way we're looking at things, you might think we're trying to buy this boat," she said.

"Only way you can get it is to marry the man who owns it," Con said.

"That would be an idea," Trixie responded with a smile, "but I'm afraid the young seadog isn't interested in marriage."

"How do you know?" George demanded. He and Mary had been following close on the heels of their friends and had caught every word in the conversation.

"Men with money and yachts are not the marrying kind," Trixie ventured "unless they find a girl in their own set. Why should they? What has a girl from the slums to offer?"

"Love perhaps," George offered. "Don't you think so, Mary?" He turned to the girl he was escorting and sought an answer.

"I think there's some truth in what Trixie said," Mary replied.

George was not quite satisfied with her answer. For a moment he was seized with a feeling of remorse. Perhaps Audrey and the girls in her set were right in their attitude toward marriage. Why shouldn't they be interested in their future economic stability? They were spoiled children brought up in wealth and luxury and it was asking too much to expect them to forego the advantages to which they had been accustomed all their lives.

What did they care about love as long as their future security was not at stake? For a moment George could see the reasonableness of their viewpoint toward marriage—that is, as an institution of convenience.

Well, he had begun something and he would go through with it. He could not now quit cold on his plan. He was in love with a girl from the opposite side of town—hopelessly in love—and he wanted to know if a rich man could be loved for himself alone and not for the wealth that he represented. He could never find the answer among his own crowd. There was too much hypocrisy, too much chicanery there, too much deceit too many ambitious mothers.

He knew he could find the answer from the lips of Mary Hale.

WHEN the girls reached the salon, after inspecting other parts of the yacht, George said, "I imagine the owner is a pretty gay bird. Take this place for instance," he said, referring to the salon, "it's certainly done up to please the ladies. But that bar's a man's size. Looks as if he liked to entertain."

"I should say so," Con spoke up. "Yet it was furnished to suit the taste of the girl he thought he was going to marry."

"Oh, so his romance is off, is it?" George asked.

"Sure. All washed up," Con returned.

"She must have been hard to please," Trixie said, her eyes wandering in an effort to appraise the luxury that surrounded her. "Couldn't have been money trouble."

"Hardly," Con ventured.

"What an opening she left for some other girl," George asserted in a casual tone. "But let's stop talking about him and go to the bar and taste the quality of the Van Buskirk liquor."

They found Bill shaking cocktails.

Mary was doubtful. "Isn't it a bit too early for cocktails?" she inquired hesitantly. "I'd rather look around some more."

"Early!" Trixie exclaimed. "It's nearly one o'clock and I'm famished."

"This yacht makes you forget everything—even your appetite," Mary said. "It's a beauty."

George was standing close by her, watching every expression. "So you're falling for this too?" he asked, with a touch of disappointment. "Here's wealth, luxury, everything that money can buy. What more could a girl want?"

"Nothing much more," Mary replied. "I'm crazy about it."

"Well, I thought it would get you," George said with edged bitterness. "It gets them all—the girls, I mean. Never saw it fail."

Mary looked up at him in surprise. "Oh," she cried, sympathetic to the hurt in his voice. "I didn't mean ——"

"You probably would like to own it?" George interrupted.

A quick flash of resentment against his words flared up in Mary.

"Of course I would!" she said, with her delicately pointed chin well tilted. "I just wish someone would offer it to me! In fact, I wouldn't mind meeting Mr. George Van Buskirk, Junior!"

"Stick around," George advised. "Maybe Van Buskirk will take you back to New York."

GEORGE'S sarcastically biting tones had stung Mary deeply and she took a proffered cocktail from Bill, to conceal the emotion she suffered.

Con had heard, but appeared to be indifferent to the slight tension. Not Trixie. She was absorbed in some mysterious gadget and had missed the passage of barbed words.

Bill said, "Have another round?" and reached across the bar for their glasses.

Suddenly he stiffened and an idiotically alarmed expression swept over his countenance.

"Good acting," Con thought to himself. Bill was following instructions to a T. "But a trifle overdone, the fool!"

George, waiting for the cue, whirled about so quickly that Mary was startled ... she turned to see what was the object of their sudden ...

Britain-France Make Secret Alliances

LONDON — Great Britain was reported today to have abandoned plans for a public "Stop Hitler" declaration and to be seeking a secret agreement among key nations to aid each other if they were menaced by German expansionism.

The Cabinet held its weekly meeting today, and was reported to be discussing the following diplomatic program:

1. Close coordination of British and French military plans for any eventuality, including any threat to Holland, Belgium, Denmark or Switzerland.

2. A joint British -French effort to induce Poland, Rumania and Jugo-Slovia to agree to go to each other's assistance if Germany threatened any one of them.

3. A British - French promise to aid these nations if they banded together for self protection.

4. To maintain the most friendly relations with Russia but to leave her out of "official" agreements.

It was emphasized in well informed quarters that all agreements under the program would be strictly secret.

The idea of leaving out Russia which has an army now estimated at 2,500,000 men—bigger than the combined French, German and Italian standing armies—was a completely new one and followed efforts to form a British - French Polish - Russian bloc.

But an announcement at Moscow that a British trade mission had discussed, and apparently agreed on, a common policy in pursuit of "peace" seemed here to indicate that actually Britain and Russia knew something that the world at large did not know—that there had been, or was likely to be, a firm agreement under which Russia would play its part in any emergency.

Believe Congress Will Give Relief

adjustment of New Deal labor and wage policies seemed likely today to develop in the wake of proposed changes in Social Security legislation.

So far as those issues are concerned the so-called business appeasement program is making considerable progress, although not always with White House support. The administration took the initiative on Social Security with endorsement of alternative methods of preventing a 1940 payroll tax increase and avoiding the collection of a $47,000,000,000 or greater reserve fund.

It appears likely now that both the Wage-Hour and National Labor Relations Act may be modified at this session. No change now in prospect would sacrifice fundamentals of either act.

Friends of the labor relations act in congress seem now to be reconciled to amendment in some degree. Reliable informations indicate, that there are committee and floor majorities assured for moderate amendment in the senate along the lines of changes proposed by the American Federation of Labor and opposed by the Congress of Industrial organizations.

The Wage-Hour Act, under the direction of administrator Elmer F. Andrews, also is in for amendment. Chairman Mary L. Norton, D., N. J., of the house labor committee announced she would offer a bill to exempt $2,000 a year white collar workers from Wage-Hour provisions. Her amending legislation also would include:

1. Protection of employers against damage liability for policies carried out under Wage-Hour Act regulations which might later be held invalid by the courts,

2. Exemption of rural telephone exchange employes.

3. Lessening of homework restrictions on Puerto Rican industry.

4. Re-definition of "area of production" provisions to ease impact of the act on localized industries.

Moose Becoming Scarcer

REGINA, Sask. — The moose, king of all Canadian big game animals and the hunter's favorite, is hard to find, according to reports from northern Saskatchewan. A shortage of fur in the northern parts of Saskatchewan is apparent as is a lesser shortage of wild game.

Own Tombstone Carved

SARATOGA, Cal. — Harry L. Tracy, 75-year-old caretaker of the Madronia cemetery here, has started a job which he admits he will never be able to finish. He has carved his own tombstone and erected it on an empty burial lot. The tombstone carries the year of his birth.

Try These Tests On Your Oil Stove

(By Lottie Wood, H. D. Agent)

There are some good tests which you can easily apply to any kerosene stove you are thinking of buying. They are suggested by the Main Experiment Station which recently completed a study of the three types of kerosene stoves now on the market, long chimney with wick burners, short chimney with wicks and short chimney, wickless.

How long does it take to heat a quart of water in a covered pan from room temperature to boiling? Ten minutes or less is good fast heating.

Will the stove give a low steady heat for simmering?

It should not take over 13 minutes to bring the oven to 475 degrees F after lighting the burners and turning them to full heat.

To test an oven for even browning, cut pieces of white paper the size of your baking pans and put them in the oven after it has been heated. Leave 2 or 3 minutes or until a deep brown is obtained, as the deep brown will disclose uneven distribution of heat better than a lighter brown.

The test for low oven heat should show that a temperature not over 250 degrees F can be held in an empty oven for an hour with the heat at the lowest setting.

Indians Want to Incorporate

Phoenix, Ariz. —Abandoning tribal traditions, the "Smoki Indians," one of the Arizona's most widely known tribes have asked to be recognized as a 'corparation' Under the new plan the tribe will substitute a president for the chief and vote on regulations at a board of directors meeting instead of in the tribal council.

WET FEET?

GARGLE LISTERINE

Prompt action may forestall trouble

Wet feet . . . cold feet . . . drafts . . . and fatigue, may lower body resistance so that germs in the throat get the upper hand and colds develop. After such exposures, why not help Nature to combat such germs by gargling with Listerine Antiseptic. Tests showed that regular users of Listerine Antiseptic had fewer colds and milder colds than non-users.

Firms That Have Helped Build Grenada County

THE OLIVER-LILLY MOTOR COMPANY

There are none to dispute the well known fact that the automobile is the essence of perfection in transportation and it is also a well known fact among the knowing that the New Ford and Mercury cars represent perfection in the automotive industry.

An uninterrupted flow of smooth power and pep you never believed existed has been built into the new lines of the Ford and Mercury cars. Solid, massively rugged strength and beauty of line, always a dominant feature of these cars, have been enhanced by many new features that will immediately attract your attention. The Ford Motor Company policy, ALWAYS RELIABLE, is reflected in every model.

It might also be said that no car is better than the service given it by the man who sells it and in this respect, The Oliver-Lilly Motor Company, owned by Mr. J. H. Oliver and Mr. O. R. Lilly, measure up to every standard set by the manufacturer—briefly to afford prompt and efficient service in every detail. They really believe in square dealing and in being friendly to the public, which is undoubtedly one of the reasons they have had an ever increasing business since opening on January 7, 1939.

This firm, maintains a very complete repair department, employing 10 trained and experienced mechanics, under the direction of Mr. Bert Henderson, who is well experienced in this work. They have a mechanic for every make of car, and guarantee all work.

In concluding this article, w wish to state that the Olive-rLilly Motor Co., in pursuit of its business, will never lose sight of the fact that it owes a debt of gratitude to the community at large, and will in the future as it has in the past, always take a real interest in all movements that may promote the public well; Always ready and anxious to aid in the expansion and growth of this county.

R. F. CARPENTER

This general store at Elliott ever since its inception 12 years ago has played an important role in the commercial life of Grenada County. It is a local firm that is dedicated to local interests, featuring nationally known products.

This firm, owned by Mrs. R. F. Carpenter, carries a complete line of grocieries, meats, dry goods, shoes, hardware, plows and implements.

Mr. Carpenter's daughter, Odie Martindale operates a similar store store 10 miles east of Elliott. Mr. Carpenter owns several large plantations and operates the store for his mployees as well as the general public.

SHARP FURNITURE CO.

Grenada, a thriving town in Grenada County boasts many fine business houses and among them is the complete furniture store of Messrs. R. D. and R. W. Sharp, who established it 36 years ago, during which time it has advanced steadily. It is a good place to buy your furniture; Crosly Radios, Westinghouse appliances, Mayflower Wall Paper, Bigelow Sanford floor coverings, Simmons Studio Couches and Western Window Shades.

Their slogan: "Sells Better Fudniture."

GRENADA INDUSTRIES

In this resume of Grenada's County's many fine business enterprises, we are pleased to refer you to the Grenada Industries, where they are engaged in the knitting of hosiery called Around-The-Clock Hosiery, because they knit a service weight here called Morning, a 3-thread called Noon, a 2 thread called Evening, and a sheer hose called air spun.

This modern plant was featured by the Miss. Industrial Commission appointed to try and get large industries to open plants in this state. Grenada built the building and a northern concern installed nearly a million dollars worth of delicaate machinery in it. These machines were installed by 24 men brought from Europe. The factory promised a certain payroll, and has more than doubled their promise.

Mr. E. L. Morrow, a local man, was instrumental in getting the plant here, and was chosen manager. He is a very active civic booster.

GRENADA THEATRE

Grenada has good reason to be proud of its splendid Moving Picture Theatre, the Grenada Theatre, owned by Mr. Homer Williams. In it you will enjoy the best in movieland because the latest in sound equipment and projectors has been installed to give better performance and the seats, 700 in number are comfortable, - really comfortable. This theatre has just recently remodeled and redecorated.

Mr. Williams is a native of Grenada and is an active booster.

GRANT FURNITURE CO.

If it's high quality furniture that you require, you'll do well to come to the store of Mr. Tom Grant, here for 4 months. It's a store of service and a store you'll like.

Here, they feature such well known brands as Atlanta ranges, and Armstrong and Alexander - Smith rugs.

E. A. MOORE GROCERY, DUCK HILL

Only quality makes low prices low. That is the foundation upon which this complete general store was erected by Mr. E. A. Moore 1 year ago. And it has proven itself a good foundation. They carry a complete line of groceries, poultry and stock feeds, work clothes, and fertilizer. With each 25c purchase the city has for money which is given away.

51 LUNCH ROOM

Delicious coffee, fine food, and pleasant surroundings for breakfast, lunch or dinner. That's the 51 Lunch Room at Grenada where Mr. Tony Potera has operated it for 8 years with the assistance of his sister, Mrs. Hodges. Their Hamburgers and Chile are something to write home about.

J. V. MESSINA'S HANDY STORE

If you buy your groceries, fresh fruits, vegetables and meats at the store of Mr. J. V. Messina, you need never worry about the quality, for Mr. Messina sees to it that only the best enters his store so that only the best can leave it.

"COMPLIMENTS OF THE BELGRADE LUMBER CO."

THE BACKBONE OF GRENADA COUNTY

The merchants and other business people listed in this commercial review of Grenada county are local people, a part of this community. Their interests and yours are one. They pay taxes here, contribute to churches, schools, charities and other local institutions that are requisite to the welfare of any community—not for any selfish gain or reason, but because these local institutions are their own a well as yours and they are glad to do their share. Do mail order houses do that? Do peddlers or out of town business interests of any nature do it? No, they don't. They take but never put and you can't keep on taking from anything without eventually improving it and having nothing left from which to take for either you or the merchant.

Isn't it good logic and common sense then for you to patronize these local merchants who have helped and will continue to help make this a finer community for you and your children and their children also?

These local merchants do not ask charity. They offer a full measure of value for every dollar received. Their goods are priced fairly, all of them. You don't pay fifty cents for one dollar article and then turn around and pay a dollar and fifty cents for another dollar article. They don't resort to such subterfuge. You get sixteen ounces to every pound, 36 inches to every yard, a hundred cents of value and service for every dollar, with a smile wrapped in every bundle. LOCAL MERCHANTS ARE LOCAL ASSETS. HELP THEM that THEY MAY HELP YOU.

One must remember that successful business houses are an absolute essential to the progress of any town. In fact a community cannot exist without them. Though they are dependent on your support, you and your community are in turn dependent upon them and a perfect spirit of cooperation between you makes the ideal community.

PIGGLY WIGGLY

In Grenada one of the leading independent stores is that of Messrs. N. W. Brown and John Ed Murray who started this venture here 2 months ago, handling a fine line of groceries, fresh fruits and vegetables and meats.

The men bought this store from Mr. N. N. Wright and completely remodeled it, installing the very latest equipment. Mr. Alton Leverette is the butcher.

ORMAN KIMBROUGH

If it's new it's here. If it's here, it's new. We take care of that by keeping right in step with the style centers of the country. ### LOWRY IN RACE FOR HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER

auguration of a 'Live-at-Home' program and by adhering strictly to my doctrine of efficiency, strict economy, and rugged honesty."

Mr. Lowry states that he favors a system of "all-weather farm-to-market roads" in each county and that if elected he will cooperate with the in-coming administration in any constructive road program.

"I believe in a fair and suitable distribution of the road funds to the counties," he declares, "and if I am chosen Highway Commissioner, will see that there are no 'forgotten counties.' I promise the people a dollar's worth of road for every dollar spent."
